

Diversity is just ‘the world.’ It’s different cultures, different backgrounds, different ethnicities, different religions, genders, sexual orientation, shapes, sizes. That is the world, but we call it ‘diversity’ because there is this one type that has always been accepted and it’s finally starting to change. D. MacDonald.

Dr Agli Zavros-Orr worked as an early years and primary teacher before completing a PhD examining teacher efficacy and care. She has two decades of experience as a teacher educator and lecturer with a particular interest in student diversity and sex, gender & sexuality.

Diversitywise Educational Services is based in the eastern suburbs of Melbourne. We can deliver services throughout Australia.

Diversitywise Educational Services provides curriculum, pedagogy, compliance and professional development services to early learning centres and schools. We emphasise:

- Learning partnerships that recognises that educators are the main custodians of knowledge regarding their context. We are advocates for 'teacher-led' educational improvement. We partner with education providers with respect to the collaborative development of learning and operational objectives and can then facilitate these drawing on our expert knowledge.
- Tailored peer and professional support informed by Australian best practice and contemporary educational research.

Student diversity encompasses Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander backgrounds, sex & gender, bodies, cultural, linguistic and faith backgrounds, socioeconomic status, cognitive abilities, diverse needs and ways of thinking and working. We use a research and evidence-informed approach for exploring how educators can deepen engagement with student diversity.

How do we make our early years centres and schools truly inclusive, safe and welcoming for everyone?

How do we better accommodate sometimes wide variations in ability within classes such that all children are engaged and extended?

How can we better incorporate understanding of student diversity in behaviour management when some behaviours can be considered as symptoms of underlying issues such as trauma, anxiety, depression or learning differences?

Is there more we can be doing to inculcate values of not just tolerance, but valuing of diversity among young people?
